

SCU

In process of time, from being a simple scrutator, an arch-deacon became to have jurisdiction more amply. Scrutator. adj. [from scrutiny.] Captious; full of inquiries. A word little used.

Age is froward, uneasy, scrutinious.

Hard to be pleas'd, and parcimonious. Denham.

SCRUTINY. n. s. [from scrutinium, Latin.] Enquiry; search; examination with nicety.

In the scrutiny for righteousness and judgment, when it is inquired whether such a person be a good man or no, the meaning is not, what does he believe or hope, but what he loves.

I thought thee worth my nearer view
And narrower scrutiny, that I might learn
In what degree or meaning thou art call'd
The son of God. Milton's Paradise Regain'd.

They that have designed exactness and deep scrutiny, have taken some one part of nature.

Their difference to measure, and to reach,
Reason well rectify'd must nature teach;
And these high scrutinies are subjects fit
For man's all-searching and enquiring wit. Denham.

We are admonish'd of want of charity towards others, and want of a Christian scrutiny and examination into ourselves.

When any argument of great importance is managed with that warmth, which a serious conviction of it generally inspires, somewhat may easily escape, even from a wary pen, which will not bear the test of a severe scrutiny.

These, coming not within the scrutiny of human senses, cannot be examined by them, or attested by any body. Locke.

To SCRUTINIZE. v. a. [from scrutiny.] To search; to examine.

The compromissari should chuse according to the votes of such, whose votes they were obliged to scrutinize.

I locked up these papers in my scrutire, and my scrutire came to be unlocked.

To SCRUTZE. v. a. [Perhaps from scrut.] This word, though now disused by writers, is still preserved, at least in its corruption, to scrutze, in the London jargon.] To squeeze; to compress.

Though up he caught him 'twixt his puissant hands,
And having scrutzed out of his carrion corse
The loathful life, now loos'd from sinful bands,
Upon his shoulders carried him. Fairy Queen.

To SCUD. v. n. [from scut, Italian; scutta, Swedish; scutur, swift, Icelandic.] To fly; to run away with precipitation.

The vote was no sooner pass'd, but away they scudded to the next lake.

The frightened fatys, that in woods delight,
Now into plains with prick'd-up ears take flight;
And scudding thence, while they their horn-feet ply,
About their fires the little sylvans cry. Dryden.

Away the frightened spectre scuds,
And leaves my lady in the luds. Swift.

To SCUDGLE. v. n. [from scud.] To run with a kind of affected haste or precipitation. A low word.

SCUFFLE. n. s. [This word is derived by Skimmer from scuffle.] A confused quarrel; a tumultuous broil.

His captain's heart,
In the scuffles of great fights hath burst
The buckles on his breast. Shakespeare. Ant. and Cleopatra.

Avowed atheists, placing themselves in the seat of the corner, take much pleasing diversions, by deriding our eager scuffles about that which they think nothing.

The dog leaps upon the serpent, and tears it to pieces; but in the scuffle the cradle happened to be overturned. L'Estrange.

Popish missionaries mix themselves in these dark scuffles, and animate the mob to such outrages and insults.

To SCUFFLE. v. n. [from the noun.] To fight confusedly and tumultuously.

I must confess I've seen, in former days,
The best knights in the world, and scuffled in some frays. Dryden.

A gallant man had rather fight to great disadvantages in the field, in an orderly way, than scuffle with an undisciplined rabble.

To SCULK. v. n. [from skulke, Danish.] To lurk in hiding places; to be close.

It has struck on a sudden into such a reputation, that it comes any longer to skulk, but owns itself publicly. Gov. of Tongue.

Feeling to be seen, within a bed
Of coleworts he conceal'd his wily head;
There skulk'd till afternoon, and watch'd his time. Dryden.

My prophets and my popishists finish'd here
Their civil efforts of the verbal war;
Not so my rabbins and logicians yield;
Retiring still their combat; from the field
Of open arms unwilling they depart,
And skulk behind the subterfuge of art. Prior.

SCU

No news of Phyl! the bridegroom came,
And thought his bride had skulk'd for flame;

Fractures of the skull are at all times very dangerous, as the brain becomes affected from the pressure.

2. A small boat; a cockboat. [See SCULLER.]

3. One who rows a cockboat.

Like catfish vile, that for mischief
Rides with his face to rumple of lead;
Or rowing skull, he's fain to love,
Look one way and another move. Hudibras.

4. [See also, Saxon, an assembly.] In Milton's style, a shoal or vast multitude of fish.

Each bay
With fry innumerable swarm, and shoals
Of fish, that with their fins and shining scales
Glide under the green wave, in skulls that oit
Bank the mid sea. Milton.

SCULLCAP. n. s. [from skull and cap.]

Her soul already was consign'd to fate,
And fliv'ring in the leaky skuller late. Dryden.

If the gentleman hath lain there, get the cook, the stablemen, and the skullion, to stand in his way. Swift.

To SCULP. v. a. [from sculp, Latin; sculper, Fr.] To carve; to engrave. A word not in use.

Oh, that the tenor of my just complaint
Were sculpt with steel on rocks of adamant!

Thy shape's in every part
So clean, as might instruct the sculptor's art. Dryden.

The Latin poets give the epithets of trifidum and trifidum to the thunderbolt, from the sculptors and painters that lived before them, that had given it three forks.

And others it to use according to his kind. Fairy Queen.

The salt part of the water doth partly rise into a scum on the top, and partly goeth into a sediment in the bottom.

Gather'd like scum, and sett'd to itself,

Upon a lazy bed, the live-long day
Breaks scurf jets. Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida.

Nothing conduces more to letters than to examine the writings of the ancients, provided the plagues of judging and pronouncing against them be away; such as envy, bitterness, precipitation, impudence, and scurf scoffing.

Than all thy soul unmanner'd scurf taunts. Dryden.

Amphibious between sea and land
The river horse. Milton.

SEA. n. s. [from see, Saxon; see, or zee, Dutch.]

1. The ocean; the water opposed to the land.

Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood
Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather
Thy multitudinous sea incarnadine,
Making the green one red. Shakespeare. Macbeth.

The rivers run into the sea. Corneille.

He made the sea, and all that is therein. Ex. xx. 11.

So do the winds and thunders cleanse the air,
So working sea settle and purge the wine,
Amphibious between sea and land
The river horse. Milton.
